

MS-207 Colton Manuscript Collection Finding Guide

The Colton Family Manuscript Collection finding guide is currently being reviewed for accuracy and usability. Please expect to see changes to the layout of this finding guide in the future as it is brought into compliance with modern archival standards for arrangement and description of materials. References to materials which were either returned to the family or transferred to another collection or repository have been removed from this guide. The identification number notes that materials were removed.

Thank you,
Patricia L. Walker,
Archivist, Museum of Northern Arizona
April 14, 2015

This finding guide for the Colton manuscript collection is a master list for all manuscript files contained within the Colton vault. Each file is listed in order by its specific manuscript number from Series 1 - 1 through Series 701 - 2. This guide also includes photographic materials and artifacts that were part of the original collection. The majority of photos have been separated from the manuscripts for preservation purposes. Many of the artifacts have been separated and placed in either the Memorabilia or Jewelry Collections. Some items have been permanently removed from the collection and returned to J. Ferrell Colton at his request.

This guide follows the original ordering and numbering scheme established when the materials were first cataloged. The folder listings have been adjusted as of 4/15/2015 so that folders with the same description do not take up individual lines.

The first pages of this guide contains an explanation of the original numbering system imposed on the collection and a table of contents that offers an overview of the collection's content and organization.

Guide to numbering system

The MS 207 - prefix was assigned to be entire Colton manuscript collection when it originally was catalogued by Katherine Bartlett. To ease use and bring the finding aid up to current DACS standards in April 2015, the MS 207 - prefix has been eliminated from the finding aid and replaced with the term "Series" where appropriate.

The five general categories that formed the basis for the original numerical organization of the Colton manuscript collection are:

MS 207 - 1 to MS 207 - 99	Museum correspondence and papers
MS 207 - 100 to MS 207 - 199	Colton research
MS 207 - 200 to MS 207 - 299	Harold S. Colton Family Papers
MS 207 - 300 to MS 207 - 399	Mary-Russell Ferrell Colton Papers
MS 207 - 400 to MS 207 - 499	J. Ferrell Colton paper papers

In the course of adding uncatalogued materials to the collection in June - July 1996, several new categories that expanded the original organizational scheme were created. They are:

MS 207 - 500 to MS 207 - 599	Miscellaneous Objects and Maps
MS 207 - 600 to MS 207 - 699	Financial material
MS 207 - 700 to MS 207 - 799	Miscellaneous oversized material

Colton Manuscript Collection (MS 207)

Within these general categories, each number represents a specific group of materials that relate to a specific aspect of the overall category. Within these more specific categories, individual items have been assigned numbers for organizational purposes. The location information from the original 1996 guide have been eliminated from this revision as the collection has been moved into a new facility and the location identification numbers are no longer relevant.

In 1996, the numbering sequence was MS 207 - category - item number. As of 2015, the numbering sequence equals Series number – item number. It is necessary to include the collection number, series number, and item number in requests as the item numbering sequence starts over within each series.
